

One evening, Sam went to his friend's wedding party. They had not met for a long time and it seen that they have many things to talk mith. The party provided wine and food, so everyone could take them free.

When the chatting was over, it was about mid-night. Sam walked on the street and knew he had drunk too much. Every part of his body was tired and his eyes was almost closed. "I can't go home like this " he thought. "I must take a taxi or I will never arrive my house." Soon a car came over, with a shinning sign on its top. Sam waved his hand and stop it. On the backseat, Sam soon fell into sleep after telling out his address. It was his last memory of that night

Next morning, when Sam woke up. What a strange place! He wasn't in his bedroom and there was police everywhere. One of them walked toward him and said " Hey, young man, what's going on." Repaid Sam " Ah, nothing. Just a way home. " " Next time, take a taxi instead of police cub!!" Sam was embrassed. What an unforgettable experience!

One evening, David Johnson(aka D.J) had a chance to attend his young and charming cousin Christine's wedding which was held in the best Chinese restaurant in Taipei. D.J. was a poor college senior, living in a resident which is only big enough to fit a bed and a closet. Poor as he was, he never takes a meal that costs over 50 N.T.. That evening, on the dinner party, was his first time to enjoy that much food and drink in the same time, especially the wine. "Such scenario could only happen in my dream." He thought, and finished his tenth glass of wine with delight.

After the dinner party, D.J greeted the bride and the groom and then walked out of the restaurant. A minute or two after his standing right in the middle of main street a "taxi" came by. D.J hopped in and told the "driver" where he lives. He was too tired to recognize the changes in his apartment until 8 o'clock in the morning. "Sir, are you feeling better now? Could you please show me your ID?" A man in uniform said to him. "I am officer Nash. I am sorry but you really have to leave now." D.J was finally awakened, and shocked. The taxi and the driver was actually officer Nash patrolling the community. Also, the apartment was a police station. However, he didn't have much time to think of how shame he was, because he was supposed to take the final exam at school which started at 7:30 "Holy crapps!" D.J. was soon on his next challenging adventure, again. Well goes the proverb. Things come with reasons" DJ's poor in wealth comes from his poor in awareness, or, perhaps, poor in fortune.
